Foreign News.

John Bull is patient, to a proverb, of maladministration by his own officials. He starts with an assumption in his mind, having the force of a first principle, that English Ministers never blunder in their diplomacy, and never lack in administrative power-than an English General is always as competent as an English soldier is brave. But facts are stubborn things. A few of them can be pushed aside or rode over unseen, by one who shuts his eyes. They may be so many and so astounding, that no winking will keep them out of sight. Tough as the old gentleman's skin is, it can be rasped so severely that he is obliged to feel, and when once he gets so far as to admit, square out, that his officers are, after all, blockheads or worse, he is as resolute to condemn as before he was obstinate to applaud. The reckoning time for the mismanagement at Sebastopol has come at last. The Aberdeen ministry have gone by the board. Roebuck's motion for an inquiry by a committee of the House of Commons, into the condition of the army and the conduct of the departments who had charge of the war, could not be staved off by any arguments that such a measure would have a depressing effect at home and abroad, and would be embarrassing to those who needed their time to not for the war, rather than to answer questions about it. The motion was carried by a large majority and the ministry forthwith resigned. Who are to constitute the new ministry is not yet settled. The chief items of news from abroad are as follows: It will be seen that an extension of the war is portended rather than a cossition of it.
